

I support strong oversight of internet service providers with Title II classification. This is vitally important to the basic ideals of freedom of speech. Internet access has become essentially a necessity of modern life, and as such, internet service providers should be strongly regulated using Title II.